Trending now — 3 topics with genuine brand angles

1	National Spicy Guacamole Day, today (Nov 14, 2026) — also National Pickle Day.	National Day Calendar — November 14	Instagram/TikTok snack-pairing post for convenience & liquor store owners. “It’s National Spicy Guacamole Day. Chips, salsa, a cold drink from the cooler — that’s a 3-item ring-up waiting to happen. Build a little end-cap around it today.” Food-pairing framing only, no alcohol-specific push, no overconsumption language.

2	National gas price fell below $4/gallon for the first time in a while — AAA put it at $3.98 as of Nov 10, 2026, a psychological threshold crossing, not just a gradual dip.	AAA, via WFSB/WBTV/ WCAX, Nov 10 2026	Facebook/LinkedIn post for c-store owners, traffic-framing (distinct from Nov 11's "savings at the pump" angle). "Gas just dropped under $4 a gallon nationally — that's the kind of headline that gets people thinking about a road trip or a pump stop. More cars at the pump means more walk-ins. Make sure every one of them gets scanned into Moolah Points before they leave, not just rung up."
3	Retailers are visibly re-investing in loyalty this week: Lowe's expanded its loyalty partnership with Bilt (Nov 11), and Rural King refreshed its rewards program (Nov 3); separately, a Modern Retail 2026 index found 89% of indexed retailers now have a loyalty program, up from 79% last year.	Digital Commerce 360 (Nov 11, 2026); Chain Store Age news brief (Nov 3, 2026); Modern Retail 2026 loyalty index	LinkedIn/newsletter post for RetailzPOS merchants, stat-led (distinct cut from Nov 12's Antavo ROI stat and Nov 13's NACS membership-by-category stat). "Nearly 9 in 10 retailers now run a loyalty program, up from 8 in 10 last year — even Lowe's and Rural King are actively expanding theirs this month. If Moolah Points isn't turned on for your regulars yet, the rest of retail just told you why it should be."

Skipped / unconfirmed despite searching: NRF Halloween final spending — now effectively a dead end rather than just unconfirmed: NRF's own page states results are released each year in late September as a pre-season forecast, with no indication a postseason actuals report is ever published. Five editions have now reached the same conclusion — recommend dropping this from future briefs' skip lists. Target's Black Friday results — Black Friday is Nov 27, hasn't happened yet. Atlanta BeltLine Small Business Saturday Marketplace (Nov 28) — still no 2026 vendor application live on Eventeny despite today being a Saturday; 2025's deadline was same-day as the event, so this likely posts closer to date. Sunoco/Parkland acquisition — real deal, but closed Oct 31, 2025, a full year stale. Reddit "trending today" — no dated November 2026 weekend roundup found anywhere searchable. Rock-paper-scissors/four-course food challenge — still no 2026-dated coverage confirming current activity. World Diabetes Day (also today) — real and dated, but deliberately excluded: any snack/sugar-adjacent framing next to a chronic-disease-awareness day risks reading as tone-deaf. Movember — checked again per standing note, still no genuine angle.

Compliance check: none of the 3 kept ideas implies RetailzPOS's own pricing/discounts; idea #1 is a food-pairing post with zero overconsumption or underage-adjacent framing; idea #2 reframes a gas-price headline toward loyalty-scan capture, not fuel/alcohol purchase volume; idea #3 is a neutral industry-stat post nudging feature adoption. Voice stays plain, owner-to-owner, and specific throughout.
