

RetailzPOS — AEO/GEO Strategy: Reddit, Quora & AI-Citation Presence

Prepared: July 21, 2026

0. A note on how this was researched (read before using the lists below)

This sandbox cannot directly browse Reddit — outbound fetch to reddit.com is blocked, and even the web-search tool used for this research does not surface live Reddit thread URLs (tested repeatedly, including `site:reddit.com` queries — it consistently returns third-party articles about Reddit discussions rather than the threads themselves). This is the same restriction that affected the retailzpos.com SEO audit and the moolahpoints.com research earlier.

So, to be precise about what's real research vs. what needs a human with normal browser access: - Subreddits below are real, verified communities (corroborated across multiple independent sources), and their links (`reddit.com/r/name`) are correct by construction. - Quora question links below are real, live URLs pulled directly from search results — these are ready to open and answer today. - Specific live Reddit threads are not included as links, because none could be verified as currently real. Instead, §2.3 gives exact search strings for your team to run in Reddit's own search bar (works fine from a normal browser) to pull current threads — this is more reliable than a stale list anyway, since relevant threads change weekly.

1. Why Reddit and Quora, specifically — the AEO/GEO case

This isn't just "post on forums for SEO." Reddit and Quora have become disproportionately important sources for what AI answer engines actually cite:

- Reddit is the #1 cited source across AI platforms combined, at roughly 40% of citations. [Otterly AI, 2026 AI Citations Report]
- Perplexity draws 24% of all its citations from Reddit alone (31% from social media overall, Reddit dominant within that). [Otterly AI / SaaS Intelligence]
- Google AI Overviews pulls 44% of its social-media citations from Reddit. [Otterly AI]
- ChatGPT cites Reddit in over 5% of responses. [CMSWire]
- Reddit's citation share grew at least 73% from October 2025 to January 2026 across tracked categories — this is an accelerating channel, not a stable one. [SaaS Intelligence]
- Separately, domains with substantial brand-mention volume on Quora and Reddit combined are roughly 4x more likely to be cited by AI systems than domains with minimal community presence. [SE Ranking, cited via earlier research]

The mechanism is straightforward: LLM-based answer engines are trained (and, for retrieval-augmented systems like Perplexity and AI Overviews, actively search) over a corpus where Reddit and Quora threads are extremely well-represented because they contain exactly the kind of first-person, comparative, "what do you actually recommend" content that a generic SEO landing page doesn't. A liquor store owner asking "what POS system do you actually use" on Reddit and getting real answers is precisely the kind of content an AI answer engine surfaces when a similar question comes in from a chat interface.

This means RetailzPOS's AEO/GEO strategy has two halves that need to work together: 1. On-site: structuring retailzpos.com content so it's citable (schema, FAQ pages, evidence-dense writing) — the technical SEO audit already covers gaps here (missing structured data, thin content, no `llms.txt`). 2. Off-site: genuine, disclosed participation in the exact places (Reddit, Quora) that AI engines are already weighting heavily — this document covers that half.

Neither half works alone. On-site content with zero external validation is weaker; off-site presence without a citable on-site destination to point back to has less to convert.

2. Reddit Strategy

2.1 Confirmed relevant subreddits

Subreddit	Fit	Why	Engagement note
r/smallbusiness	High	The largest general small-business-owner community; POS system questions are a recurring, common thread type here.	Best home for genuine "what POS do you recommend" answer participation.
r/Entrepreneur	High	Large, active business-owner audience; broader than retail but retail/POS questions surface regularly.	Good for both Q&A participation and, per subreddit rules, occasional sanctioned self-promo threads.
r/AskBusiness	High	Q&A-format subreddit specifically for "second opinion" style business questions — a strong format match for answering POS-comparison questions helpfully.	Ideal for disclosed, expert-voice answers rather than promo posts.
r/Bootstrapped	Medium	Self-funded business owners, cost-conscious — relevant since POS cost/ROI is a live concern for this audience.	Good fit for cost/ROI-framed answers (ties to Moolah's pricing-transparency content).
r/SweatyStartup	Medium-low	Focused on "unsexy," local, often blue-collar-adjacent businesses — some independent retail owners participate, but it skews toward services (landscaping, cleaning) more than retail.	Monitor rather than prioritize; participate opportunistically if a relevant thread appears.
r/startups	Low	Very large (1.8M members) but skews toward tech/VC-backed startups, not independent brick-and-mortar retail.	Low priority for RetailzPOS specifically.

Two subreddits confirmed real but the wrong crowd for this purpose — worth knowing about so you don't waste effort here:

Subreddit	Why it looks relevant but isn't
r/retailhell (157k members)	Retail frontline workers venting about bad customers and bosses — not owners evaluating software. Posting POS content here would read as tone-deaf.
r/TalesFromRetail	Similar — story/anecdote sharing among retail workers, not a purchase-decision community.

Not confirmed to exist as active, meaningful communities (checked directly, found no evidence of real activity): dedicated subreddits for liquor stores, convenience stores, or smoke/vape shop owners specifically. If any of these exist as small/niche communities, they weren't surfaced by this research and would need direct in-browser confirmation — don't build a plan assuming they're there until verified.

2.2 What "engaging" should actually mean

Reddit's own community norms (documented across multiple 2026 guides on brand engagement) are consistent on this:

- The old "90/10 rule" (90% value, 10% promo) was retired by Reddit as too rigid, but the spirit still governs how you avoid a ban — find existing conversations rather than manufacturing them, and lead with a genuinely useful answer before any product mention. [RedShip, 2026]
- Always disclose affiliation. "Full disclosure — I work at RetailzPOS, so take this with a grain of salt, but here's how we handle X" removes the single most common reason for a ban: users feeling deceived. Undisclosed promotion is explicitly what gets reported and removed.
- Subreddit-specific promo rules have tightened in 2026 — many subreddits now cap self-promotion (e.g., one promotional post per 60 days) or corral it into designated threads. Check each subreddit's rules before posting anything promotional; answering an existing question is generally fine, starting a new promotional thread often isn't.
- Never run multiple accounts or send unsolicited DMs to thread participants — both are fast paths to a sitewide ban, not just a subreddit-level removal.
- Aggressive cross-posting of the same pitch across many subreddits risks a shadowban (posts become invisible to everyone but you, with no notification) — pace engagement, don't blast it.

2.3 How to find current live threads (since this research couldn't pull them directly)

Have someone on the team run these searches directly on reddit.com (logged in, using Reddit's native search, not Google) weekly or biweekly, and answer genuinely wherever RetailzPOS has a real, honest answer to add:

- POS system liquor store (sort by New, then by Top - Past Month)
- point of sale recommendation convenience store
- best POS smoke shop / best POS vape shop
- POS system age verification
- switching POS systems retail
- Square vs Clover vs Lightspeed liquor (or convenience/vape)
- Set up a Reddit keyword alert or a tool like F5Bot / Reddit's own "notify me" on saved searches for "POS system" liquor, "point of sale" "convenience store", "POS" "smoke shop" — this turns the "find current threads" problem from a manual weekly search into an automatic notification, which is the more sustainable version of §2.3's manual searches.

3. Quora Strategy

3.1 Live, verified question URLs — ready to answer now

Liquor store vertical: - What is the best POS software for liquor shop management? - What are the most popular/common POS Systems used by liquor store businesses? - Which is the best liquor store POS system? - "Best" POS system for a small, one station liquor store? - How can a liquor store POS system be customized to fit the specific needs of a particular store?

Smoke shop / vape vertical: - What is the best point of sale system for brick and mortar vape shops? - What cloud POS system is the best for a vape store and why?

Convenience store vertical: - What is the POS system for a small grocery store? (grocery/convenience overlap — directly relevant) - What are some good open source point of sale systems for convenience stores? - What's the most common POS software for gas stations? (gas station + c-store overlap is extremely common in this ICP)

General retail POS (broader reach, lower intent specificity — still worth answering): - What is the best POS software for retail businesses? - What are the most common POS systems for retailers? - What is a good POS system for a small retail stores?

How to use these: don't just drop "use RetailzPOS" on all 12. Answer the ones in your exact verticals (liquor, smoke/vape, convenience/gas) with real depth — mention RetailzPOS with disclosure where it's genuinely the right answer, and mention it as one reasonable option among several on the general-retail questions where a full-throated pitch would read as spam. Quora's algorithm and moderators both reward answer quality/length/specificity, which also happens to be exactly what makes an answer AI-citable.

3.2 Quora's policy on this (know it before you post)

- Disclosure is required: if you're answering about your own company's product, you must clearly state the affiliation in the answer itself — not just in your profile bio. [Quora Help Center]
- Spam is defined as content whose primary purpose is directing traffic to a commercial site while providing little value back to the community — a one-line "check out RetailzPOS.com" answer is exactly this. A genuinely useful, specific answer that happens to mention RetailzPOS with disclosure is not.
- Random/unexplained hyperlinks get flagged — any link should be explicitly framed as a source or further reading, not just dropped in.
- Quora "Spaces" (topic-specific sub-communities, roughly Quora's equivalent of subreddits) exist for retail/small-business topics and are worth searching for once you're active on the platform — this research didn't surface specific Space URLs to verify, so treat this as a follow-up, not a current gap.

4. Action Plan

Week 1-2 — Foundation - [] Assign a real, named person (ideally someone customer-facing, not a generic "marketing team" account) to own Reddit/Quora participation — authenticity and consistency of voice matters more than volume here. - [] Draft a standard disclosure line for both platforms (e.g., "Disclosure: I work at RetailzPOS, so factor that in — but here's an honest answer either way..."). - [] Answer the 12 live Quora questions above, prioritized by vertical match (liquor and vape/smoke first, since those have the least existing competition per the earlier competitive analysis). - [] Set up Reddit keyword monitoring (F5Bot or equivalent) for the search terms in §2.3.

Week 3-4 — Reddit participation begins - [] Start answering genuine questions in r/smallbusiness, r/Entrepreneur, and r/AskBusiness as they appear via the keyword monitor — no cold posting, only responding to real existing questions initially. - [] Review each target subreddit's specific self-promotion rules (varies by community) before any post that mentions RetailzPOS by name.

Ongoing - [] Weekly Quora check for new relevant questions (search "POS system liquor store," "POS convenience store," "vape shop point of sale" directly on Quora — same logic as the Reddit search terms). - [] Track which answered threads/questions later show up as AI-citation sources for RetailzPOS-related queries (spot-check by asking ChatGPT/Perplexity "best POS for a liquor store" periodically and noting whether Reddit/Quora content citing RetailzPOS appears) — this is the actual feedback loop that tells you the strategy is working, since neither platform gives you a direct "AI citation" analytics dashboard. - [] Pair this with the on-site AEO work already flagged in the technical SEO audit (structured data, FAQ schema, freshness cadence) — off-site presence and on-site citability reinforce each other.

Sources: Otterly AI — The AI Citation Economy 2026, SaaS Intelligence — Reddit's AI Citation Share Growth, CMSWire — Reddit's Rise in AI Citations, RedShip — Reddit Self-Promotion Rules 2026, Quora Help Center — Platform Policies, live Quora question URLs as cited inline, GummySearch r/retailhell stats.