Trending now — 3 topics with a genuine brand angle

1	The Great American Beer Festival is live this weekend in a new format — moved outdoors to Levitt Pavilion in Denver, weekend-only (no Thursday/Friday sessions), aimed at a smaller, more affordable experience. Medal results for 2026 hadn't posted as of this research.	Axios Denver — What's New at GABF This Year	Instagram/TikTok, craft-discovery post. Not a drinking-occasion post — a "local winners on your shelf" angle once results land: "GABF went outdoor and weekend-only this year — smaller, more community-focused. If any of this year's medal winners are already on your shelf, that's an easy shelf-talker once the list is official." Framed around discovery and supporting craft breweries, not consumption.

2	Liquor retail consolidation is real and picking up — Texas chain Spec's just made its first out-of-state move, acquiring Nevada's largest independent chain (Lee's Discount Liquors, 23 stores); Indiana's Big Red Liquors separately absorbed the 15-store Cap n' Cork chain.	Shanken News Daily — Texas Retail Giant Spec's Expands to Nevada With Lee's Acquisition, Inside Indiana Business — Big Red Liquors to Buy Fort Wayne's Cap n' Cork	LinkedIn, independent-owner post. "Consolidation in liquor retail is real and picking up — which makes the case for staying independent sharper, not weaker. The one thing an acquired chain gives up first is knowing every regular by name. That's not nostalgia — it's a structural edge a 23-store acquisition can't easily buy back, and it's exactly what a loyalty program built for one store protects." Ties to Moolah Points without naming a specific offer.
3	"Cozy October" audio is trending on Reels — tracks like "My October" and "Hello October" are the week's go-to sound for fall-themed, seasonal content.	Metricool — Top 10 Trending Songs on Instagram This Week (Oct 7, 2026)	Instagram Reel, seasonal shelf-spotlight. Pair the trending cozy-fall audio with a quick "what's new this week" shelf tour — seasonal ciders, fall releases, autumn snack pairings. Light, format-matched to what's actually winning reach right now, no promotional framing needed.

Skipped, no genuine angle today: the NLCS/ALCS storylines (MLB postseason content has run three times already this month — a fourth angle today would be padding, not a new idea), Indigenous Peoples' Day/Columbus Day (already covered Oct 7, nothing new surfaced), and the Street Fighter movie's Oct 16 release (no retail tie that didn't feel forced).

Compliance check: none of the above imply pricing, encourage overconsumption, or use underage-adjacent framing — #1 is framed around discovery and local support, #2 is a structural business-strategy point with no product claim, #3 is a neutral seasonal format post.
