1	Federal hemp/CBD redefinition takes effect today (Nov 12, 2026) — a Nov 2025 spending law narrows hemp's federal definition; intoxicating hemp products (delta-8, delta-10, THCA) and most CBD products exceeding a 0.4mg THC/container limit lose legal hemp status. Illinois also enacts its own low-dose THC beverage prohibition the same day.	cannabislawreport.com, natlawreview.com, convenience.org, cannabisbusinesstimes.com (Illinois)	Educational/ compliance post for CBD & smoke-vape retailers, Instagram/LinkedIn/ newsletter. "A federal rule on hemp-derived products takes effect today. If you carry CBD, this is worth 5 minutes to understand — talk to your supplier and check your state's own rules, since some states (like Illinois) are adding their own restrictions on top." Pure information/ compliance-help framing, no product claims, no legal advice given — just "here's what's changing, go verify with your supplier."

2	U.S. retail alcohol dollar sales down 2.0–2.4% in late October/early November 2026 — a soft-sales stretch industry-wide heading into the holidays.	vinetur.com, citing NIQ data, Nov 3–4 2026	LinkedIn/Facebook post for liquor-store owners. “Industry-wide alcohol sales are soft right now — down a couple points from last year. When overall traffic dips, the owners who come out ahead are the ones who get the same customers back more often. That’s what Moolah Points is for.” No pricing/discount language, no encouragement to drink more — pure retention/loyalty framing.
3	Reddit’s 2026 Small Business Holiday Report: mentions of “small business” in r/gifts up 120% YoY, and roughly half of Reddit users say they prefer buying from local/independent retailers.	socialmediatoday.com, citing Reddit’s 2026 report	Instagram/Facebook “shop local” post, any RetailzPOS vertical. “Half of shoppers say they’d rather buy local than big-box, if they just know who’s out there. Make sure your regulars know the best way to be loyal to you is to come back — Moolah Points gives them a reason to choose you again instead of the chain down the street.”

4	Antavo's 2026 Global Customer Loyalty Report: average loyalty program ROI across industries now 5.3x (up from 5.2x in 2025); ~$10B in loyalty rewards go unclaimed by U.S. consumers yearly.	Antavo 2026 Global Customer Loyalty Report	LinkedIn/newsletter post for RetailzPOS merchants, stat-led. "The average loyalty program now returns $5.30 for every $1 spent running it, industry-wide. If you haven't turned Moolah Points on for your regulars yet, that's the number that makes the case." Real, specific data — nudges feature adoption rather than inventing a stat.
5	"Paparazzi" candid-video aesthetic trend — a TikTok format built around slowed/dramatic music and intentionally "caught in the moment" candid framing, still circulating per trend trackers.	Know Your Meme — Paparazzi animation trend; trend roundups, Aug–Nov 2026	Store-specific TikTok/Reels content. Film 10–15 seconds of genuinely candid, unposed moments in the shop — a regular grabbing their usual order, an owner restocking, a laugh at the counter — cut with a dramatic/cinematic audio choice in the trend's style, text overlay like "caught on camera: another Tuesday." No scripted product pitch — fits the "Counter Culture" content muscle already in motion.

Skipped / unconfirmed despite searching: Target's Black Friday results — Black Friday itself is Nov 27, hasn't happened yet; still only pre-sale content. NRF Halloween final spending — still only the pre-season $13.5B forecast, no post-season actual ever appears to get published. Current national gas price for today specifically — search results returned conflicting/stale headline figures spanning Nov 3–9 ($4.02–$4.15); held rather than present a possibly-stale number as current (yesterday's brief already used the confirmed Nov 8 figure). "Rock-paper-scissors / four-course-meal" food challenge — originated 2024, not confirmed as currently resurging. World Pneumonia Day (today) — real and dated, but no genuine non-forced brand angle. Arko's loyalty-app relaunch — dated to March 2026, not new this week, and overlaps conceptually with yesterday's Golden Gate Petroleum item. Small Business Saturday (Nov 28) — confirmed but over two weeks out; held for a closer-dated brief.

Compliance check: none of the 5 kept ideas implies RetailzPOS's own pricing/discounts; idea #1 is purely informational/compliance-help (no legal advice, no product claims, directs owners to verify with their own suppliers); idea #2 frames softness as a retention opportunity, not a prompt to drink more; ideas #3–5 carry no alcohol/tobacco/CBD claims at all. Voice stays plain and owner-to-owner throughout.
